IBA Karachi organizes public talk titled: 'Central Asia in Modern Age: Patterns of Transformation'

The Institute of Business Administration (IBA). Karachi organized a public talk on 'Central Asia in the Modern Age: Patterns of Transformation' featuring Professor Adeeb Khalid, Jane and Raphael Bernstein Professor of Asian Studies and History and Chair of Department of History, Carleton College. As an eminent historian, Professor Khalid brings a wealth of expertise to unravel the complex tapestry of change in Central Asia. His extensive body of work encompasses four distinct books on Central Asia and the talk centered around his latest book. This event marked a momentous occasion as it was his second professional talk in Pakistan, a country with a keen interest in the region's historical narrative. The talk was attended by students, faculty, historians and prominent scholars. Executive Director, IBA Karachi, Dr. S Akbar Zaidi welcomed Professor Khalid and invited him to shed light on Central Asia's rich history and its impact on the world. Professor Khalid thanked Dr. Zaidi and delved into the intricate historical patterns that have molded Central Asia over the years. His nuanced insights provided attendees with a comprehensive understanding of the region's multifaceted transformation. Speaking about Central Asia's global significance as well as its specific relevance to Pakistan, he said that South Asia had a strong link with Central Asia. PR
